SCENE PARIS.....	15

Our mission is to connect emerging artists with established collectors. We want to create infrastructure for artists to build their career. We want the mark of being exhibited as Scene to be the first stamp of approval on any glittering career.

Introduction

SCENE Art Fair will showcase the work of young, emerging artists (ages 16 to 27) at the start of their professional careers. Held twice a year as a satellite fair in carefully selected cities—including London, Paris, Miami, New York, Venice, Dubai, São Paulo, Tokyo, Lagos, and Melbourne—SCENE fosters an international community of fresh artistic talent.

Each edition will feature fifteen to twenty artists, each given their own space to craft an atmosphere reflecting their unique identity. Artists' presence is not just encouraged but required, reinforcing the idea that collectors are investing in the story that the artist has to tell and their evolving career rather than just a single piece.

SCENE attracts a dynamic mix of art enthusiasts—seasoned collectors and newcomers alike—who are curious about the future of contemporary art. A diverse price range allows established buyers and first-time collectors to engage in meaningful conversations and discover the next generation of creative voices.

Concept and theme

The concept of Scene Art Fair is to promote and facilitate exposure for young artists, inspire those who visit (gallerists, collectors, creatives, and people passing by) the show, and foster community by creating a space where individuals can come together for their shared love and passion of art. Therefore, the theme of this art fair focuses on the unseen, nameless, and undiscovered artists of new, innovative works across various mediums to give them visibility. This art fair aims to showcase artists and provide a snapshot of current trends in the art world. This is important for open discussion and increased engagement in the host city.

Target Audience

Our target audience bridges the gap between the next generation of art collectors and seasoned patrons with a deep appreciation for artistic expression. We aim to engage young collectors looking to make their first significant acquisitions—those who value innovation, authenticity, and fresh perspectives. At the same time, we attract established and wealthy collectors who invest in art not just as a financial asset but also as a genuine passion for creative talent and cultural impact. By bringing these groups together, SCENE fosters an ecosystem where emerging artists receive meaningful recognition and collectors discover groundbreaking work that resonates beyond the market.

Exhibition Structure and Location

The fair will occur bi-annually, following a satellite model, at two select locations that will rotate yearly. The primary locations will be London, Paris, Miami, New York, Venice, Dubai, São Paulo, Tokyo, Nigeria, and Melbourne, rolling out the first fair in Paris.

Local collaboration

For our first edition of SCENE in Paris, we will highlight emerging local talent, fostering a strong foundation within the city's vibrant art scene. From there, our vision expands globally. Each fair will introduce new artists and feature standout winners from the previous edition, creating an ongoing dialogue between creative voices across different regions. This recognition cycle and international exchange ensure that artists gain sustained exposure, connecting with collectors and audiences worldwide while building a truly global artistic community.

Visual Arts

SCENE will showcase various contemporary visual arts, highlighting traditional and cutting-edge mediums. Depending on the artists who submit works, the fair will feature painting, photography, mixed media, installation, new digital art, etc.

Layout, Design, and Exhibition Type

While the layout and design of the fair will vary from location to location, we aim to design the fair to exhibit fewer artists as solo exhibitions, allowing them to showcase a large number of their works. The number of artists being shown is 15 to 20. The work the selected artists submit will first have to be approved by the art fair committee for the show.

Application Process, Selection Criteria, & Offered Services

Instructions on how artists can apply and how selections will be made will be accessible on Scene Art Fairs' official website to ensure diversity and inclusivity. After submitting an application, Scene art fairs' jury panel made up of a Jury selection and past winners of the art fairs' jury panel will review and select participants.

The criteria to apply includes:

Applicants must be aged 18 to 27

Open to visual art forms: painting, photography, mixed media, installation, and digital art

Applicants are ideally but not exclusively based in the location of the art fair that year

A minimum of 8 works must be submitted

No offensive, slanderous, or hate speech content will be accepted

We welcome entries from all artists regardless of race, ethnicity, religion, political affiliation, gender, gender expression, national origin, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, or military status.

Value Proposition for Sponsors

Scene offers sponsors an opportunity to meaningfully engage with the next generation of creatives while reaching an international and culturally invested audience through curated sponsorship packages; partners benefit from visibility across digital, print, and in-person channels. These include logo placement at the fair, infusion in our marketing materials, brand presence during VIP events, and options for co-hosted programming such as dinners or artist talks.

Sponsors are invited into a network of collectors, institutions, and rising artists and are positioned as key supporters of cultural development and creative infrastructure. Supporting Scene is not just a marketing investment; it is a contribution to future-focused arts ecosystems and long-term talent development.

Ticketing

Ticket pricing will vary by city, reflecting the local market and context. SCENE will offer three tiers: a standard admission ticket, a reduced-rate ticket for guests under 27, and a VIP experience available upon request (POA).

VIP Experience

Begins with private chauffeured transport to the exhibition, where guests are welcomed into an exclusive preview before public access begins, offering the opportunity to engage directly with artists and view the works in an intimate setting. The company of a translator will be offered if needed. Champagne and light refreshments will be provided as well.

Over the next few days, VIP guests are invited to artists/collector dinners, where exhibiting artists can discuss their practice over dinner. These dinners foster a connection between collectors and artists as we bet on people and potential, allowing us to truly regenerate art.

Marketing and Promotion

SCENE Art Fair's marketing strategy is designed to reach its core audiences—emerging artists, collectors, and the broader creative community—through tailored channels and messaging.

Digital Promotion

SCENE will be promoted primarily through storytelling-driven content on Instagram and X, supported by digital ads and features in lifestyle and art-focused publications. A strong social media presence, bolstered by partnerships with universities, cultural foundations, and influencers, will amplify visibility and foster community engagement. Additionally, the official SCENE website will serve as a central hub for event updates, pop-up announcements, and fair information, including access to an exclusive online viewing room for purchasing artworks—available after the second day of each fair.

Collectors & Patrons

To reach established collectors and patrons, SCENE will distribute printed invitations to select mailing lists, provide private previews through collector networks, and collaborate with VIP clubs and institutional partners. Events will be promoted through luxury member communities and cultural organizations to ensure high-caliber attendance.

Emerging Artists

Outreach to young, emerging artists will be focused on platforms like Instagram and TikTok, along with printed materials (posters and flyers) distributed in art schools and cultural hubs. SCENE will also partner with academic institutions to host Q&A sessions, offering students direct access to application opportunities and behind-the-scenes insights.

Creative Community & General Public

To engage the broader public and creative community, SCENE will activate pop-up events in key cultural locations, supported by posters, local influencers, and editorial content in both print and digital media. These touchpoints will create curiosity, increase participation, and invite a wider audience into the SCENE experience.

Visual identity

SCENE's visual identity embodies a sophisticated yet playful identity, offering a modern yet approachable look. Anchored by the elegant Palmore typeface featured in our logo and headers and the clean versatility of Avenir, our typography reflects both refinement and a cutting-edge point of view.

Evaluation and Impact

We will assess the SCENE Art Fair's success, and implement a multifaceted approach, including quantitative and qualitative methods, to evaluate:

Attendance and Ticket Sales:

We will track the total number of attendees over the fair's duration and compare it to similar events from the same year. To gauge interest and engagement, we will also analyze ticket sales data, including regular, student, and VIP tickets.

Artist and Collector Feedback:

We will conduct post-fair surveys for the participating artists and some, if not all, collectors to gather insights on their experiences, satisfaction levels, and perceived value of the event. This survey will include specific questions about the fair's networking opportunities, sales experiences, and overall organization.

Sales and Engagement Metrics:

We will monitor the number of artworks sold, average transaction values, and overall revenue generated from sales, including commissions. We will also analyze social media engagement.

Community Engagement:

We will measure the effectiveness of partnerships with local organizations and educational institutions through collaboration feedback.

Media Coverage and Publicity:

We will evaluate the extent of media coverage generated before, during, and after the fair through press articles, social media mentions, and interviews. We will also assess the impact of advertising efforts, such as Google Ads and social media promotions, by tracking click-through rates and conversion metrics.

Diversity and Inclusivity Outcomes:

We will review the diversity of artists and artwork presented at the fair to ensure alignment with our values of inclusivity and representation. We will also collect feedback from artists and attendees regarding their perceptions of inclusivity within the fair's structure and programming.

Expected Impact on Participating Artists, Collectors, and Community

For participating artists:

The SCENE Art Fair provides a huge platform for young, emerging artists to showcase their work to a broader audience. This elevates their profiles and careers while adding to their financial sustainability and growth. Artists will have the chance to connect and network with collectors, gallerists, and other industry professionals, fostering relationships that can lead to future collaborations or exhibitions without an intermediary.

For Collectors, the SCENE Art Fair presents a unique opportunity to discover and invest in the next generation of creatives. Collectors can enrich their collections with new and innovative works of art that reflect current and upcoming trends in contemporary art while engaging in a local and international art community. They will also have the chance to expand their network with other collectors, galleries, institutions, and artists while supporting emerging talent.

The impact of the SCENE Art Fair extends beyond the artists and collectors to the community. By showcasing diverse artistic expressions, SCENE will add to the local cultural vibrancy. The fair will also promote art education and appreciation and foster a love of the arts among young people. Additionally, the event is expected to generate economic activity in the host city, benefiting local businesses, hotels, and restaurants while attracting visitors from different regions.

Conclusion

SCENE Art Fair exists to reimagine what an entry point into the art world can look like. As a biannual satellite fair, SCENE connects emerging artists (ages 16–27) with collectors and cultural institutions across major art hubs worldwide. It offers early-career creatives international visibility, space to present their full artistic vision, and direct access to the people who can champion their growth.

By prioritizing authenticity, innovation, and community, SCENE cultivates an immersive environment where collectors engage with the artist’s story—not just the work. Through thoughtful curation, targeted marketing, and meaningful partnerships, the fair generates value for artists, collectors, sponsors, and the broader creative community alike.

SCENE is more than an art fair—it is a long-term investment in the future of contemporary art and artists, built on the belief that the next generation deserves a seat at the table, and the world is ready to listen.
